

Some facilities just don't belong in heart of community

Our sympathy goes out to the good people of Apex who had to evacuate from their homes for a day or so because of the chemical fire, but who should they blame... the chemical company or their former town leaders? Someone representing the town of Apex approved this chemical storage plant.

It seems to us that our town leaders are so set on growth and greed that they fail to weigh the facts and risks, as they should. I hear that several lawsuits have already been filed even though they don't know if any environmental damages have occurred.

Maybe the good citizens of New Hill should be filing lawsuits against the Town Partners and County officials just in case we have to evacuate because of the proposed sewer plant that the Town Partners are planning in New Hill.

When we begin smelling your sewer, we will have to move out forever!

We know that the reason for the new sewer plant in our community is not just to get the water back into the Cape Fear River. Putting the water back into the Cape Fear could be accomplished relatively cheaply without building a new plant.

The reason for the new plant is growth and greed by our city leaders.

So, as we people in New Hill prepare our lawsuits, we see the leaders of Wake County and the Town Partners responsible for our situation.

We do not blame you for not wanting the chemical plant to rebuild in your town, and now is the time for action to prevent it. We in New Hill do not want your sewer either, and now is the time for your leaders to act to prevent it.
